MONTHLY OFFERINGS

Dear Reader

Well haven't we been lucky this summer? All that sunshine and good weather. I hope that you have managed to enjoy some of it. Yes I know that we are desperate for rain and have to conserve our water, but believe me when I say, another month or so and we will be moaning about the cold, the wet and the wind.

That's what we do us brits, we moan about the weather, 'it's too hot for me', 'this rain is awful', 'I can't stand up for the wind'. Sometimes it feels like we're never really satisfied, never really in the moment and appreciating what we have. Anyway it got me thinking...

How good are we at turning things on their heads and instead of seeing the negatives, look for the positives and if that feels too much (which it can sometimes), look for the 'glimmers', someone told me about this a year or so ago.

Glimmers are the little things, personal to each one of us, not the same for everyone. It could be something you've seen, something someone said, or did for you. Something that made you feel good, made you smile, made you feel comfortable.

There are no rules to a glimmer, it's yours, it's up to you. Sometimes all these glimmers put together can make us feel pure joy, sometimes you may have all on trying to find one, but they will be there, a little thing to make you smile and feel lighter.

Finding the glimmers in your day takes some practice, particularly when times are tough, just start with little things if that's the case. My regular ones are being outside, nature, someone making me belly laugh, doing something for someone else and feeling good about it.

I could ramble all day.

I'll just finish with this bit, there's a lot written about being kind, but not much written about glimmers, see if you can be someone else's glimmer and see what it feels like and try to find your own.

Have a peaceful day.

THEY'RE PAINTING THE ROSES RED!

Charles Lutwidge Dodgson, better known to the World as Lewis Carroll, is associated with many towns in Great Britain and also made a visit to Russia, but his frequent trips to Yorkshire and indeed East Yorkshire are not well known, but the evidence is all around us.

Carroll was born in 1832 in Daresbury, Cheshire where his clergyman father was Dean, when he was 11 years of age his father took up a new post at the Vicarage of Croft-on-Tees, North Yorkshire.

He attended Richmond School and wrote articles for the Whitby Gazette, so began his time in Yorkshire.

Carroll's Great-Grandfather was Admiral Lutwidge, R.N. and his Grandfather served on H.M.S. Terrible and was now Port and Customs officer in the City of Hull, with young Carroll paying many visits to listen to his Grandad's sea faring tales.

His uncle Charles was Rector of St. Martin's Church at Burton Agnes and Harpham Church. Carroll often stayed at the Rectory there after his trips to Hull. Uncle Charles employed a young curate Rev. Henry Hussey, the brother of Ellen Hussey, who was Charlotte Bronte's best friend. Charlotte turned down Henry's marriage proposal, within a week he also proposed to one of Carroll's Aunts!

Henry also arranged Charlotte's travelling plans for her visit to Bridlington. He was asked to leave Burton Agnes church due to mental health problems and couldn't cope with arranging church sermons sadly, he ended his days in an asylum where he took his own life.

Carroll's uncle brought in Robert Wilberforce [the son of William Wilberforce] to run the parish in 1848 under his and his wife's patronage. Robert decided to renovate the church whist 16 year old Carroll was staying at the Rectory.

Robert discovered that the local land-owning family, the Griffiths, fought during the War of the Roses on the red rose Lancastrian side and the wooden Church warden staves were carved with white Yorkshire roses, so he had them re-painted in red. This inspired young Carroll to come up with "They're trying to paint the roses red" part in Alice's Adventures in Wonderland. In his later years he would explain the story, he also told the story of the little drummer boy who was sent down an hole under the Harpham well near the church.

There is also the white rabbit carving in St. Mary's church in Beverley, but there is no evidence Carroll ever visited the town. There is however a carving on a misericord of a rabbit vanishing down a hole in Ripon Cathedral where Carroll did visit.

His brother Skeffington [who was named after his grandmother] became the Curate at the Bridlington Priory Church and Carroll began to visit the town whilst he stayed at Whitby during six visits to his younger brother. In 1880 Skeffington, aged 43, married Isabella Mary Cooper, aged 30, whose brother John R. Cooper ran the High Street chemist shop. Carroll was a witness, or even best man at the Bridlington wedding.

The newly married couple lived at no. 60 High Street and Skeffington owned a lot of land in the Old Town area. In January 1885 a boy was born and named Charles Lutwidge Dodgson after his now famous uncle and it is thought Carroll must have attended the christening of his namesake. Sadly the little lad died before he was a year old, his death certificate, which I now own, reads "cause of death 22nd August, teething". Carroll attended his funeral in the church yard, it was possibly his last visit to Bridlington.

Rev. Skeffington and his wife sadly moved to Voychurch parish in Herefordshire where he died in 1910.

Isabella, his wife, did return to her home town and died in 1937. She is buried in the Cooper vault at Bridlington Priory .

Did Bridlington seaside inspire Carroll's poem Walrus and the Carpenter? The red rose staves are still there in a Yorkshire church at Burton Agnes and Carroll's "Duchess" is still to be found carved in stone on the West front of the Bridlington Priory church. His sister-in-law and his nephew namesake lie buried in the church yard. Lewis Carroll died of pneumonia in January 1898, aged 65, in Guilford, but some claim he had a leaking gas fire in his rooms .

In 1995, three friends and I took on the onerous task of recording every memorial at the Bridlington Priory and discovered Carroll's nephew and sister-in-law. I visited Carroll's grave in Surrey, only now can I tell of his time in Bridlington and the East Riding.

DID YOU KNOW?

With The East Wolds Community Newsletter covering a variety of villages, Adam Kelly decided to investigate the various areas for interesting facts - starting with Burton Fleming.

- In 1643, Queen Henrietta Maria - wife of Charles I - sought refuge in Burton Fleming while transporting arms during the English Civil War.
- The village appears in the Domesday Book as “Burtone”. Fleming likely refers to settlers from Flanders, the “Flemish Region” of Belgium.
- About one-third of East Yorkshire villages are named after Viking settlements. Approximately 120 were of Anglo-Saxon origin, ending in “-ton” (enclosure). “Burton” meant a fortified village.

- The mysterious stream running through Burton Fleming is known as the Gypsy Race. Locals once believed it foretold disaster - in 1914 and 1939, it flowed unusually strong before both World Wars.

- According to local historians, the 1776 Race flood forced the re-siting of the Burton Fleming-Foxholes road, likely caused by a rare surge in the mysterious Gypsy Race stream.
- “Gypsy” may derive from gypa (Norse) - a gushing stream; or it may have been likened to a gipsy wanderer.
- “Scrambling” was often performed on the morning of the first working day of the New Year. In Driffield, children would “scramble” outside of shops for coins, apples, nuts, etc. that were thrown amongst them.

- The Burton Fleming crossroads is home to a unique, two-handled long case water pump called “Black Jack”. Water pumps, aka parish or pitcher pumps, were used to provide clean water to communities before the introduction of domestic piped water systems.

- It was once a local wedding custom at Burton Fleming church to tie together the lych gates during the ceremony. Before the bride and groom could leave, the groom or best man had to scatter enough small change for the children waiting outside to agree to cut the string. This custom likely originated from the practice of “Scrambling”.
- In 2017, Burton Fleming declared itself a “hedgehog friendly village”, in an attempt to tackle the mammal’s declining population. According to a 2015 report by the People’s Trust for Endangered Species, the rural hedgehog population had decreased by 50% since 2000. If you want to know more about protecting and supporting hedgehogs, please visit The British Hedgehog Preservation Society on their website: www.britishhedgehogs.org.uk

EASY SORBET

We all like a recipe that can use up a glut of fruit or we can whip up quickly.

I took this recipe from my Stéphane Reynaud's book that I have used lots of times. It gives you a recipe for every day of the year, using great fresh ingredients. I don't think you have to use the most expensive stuff, just use ingredients you like and the best you can afford.

Enjoy, let us know how it went!

Ingredients:

300 g (10½ oz) frozen fruit pieces
50 g (1¾ oz/¼ cup) sugar
1 egg white

Preparation Time:

5 minutes

Method:

The ideal is to make one's own frozen fruit during their peak season. Peaches, raspberries, strawberries, figs, pineapple ... cut them into small cubes and freeze them on a tray so that each cube is separate. Purée the frozen fruit with the sugar and the egg white* until the texture is creamy. Serve immediately.

*WHAT'S THE EGG WHITE FOR?

To emulsify the sorbet and give it a very smooth texture.

Recipe courtesy of Ann Clark, Foxholes

HAVE YOUR SAY: STOP THE FOXHOLES GAS WELL APPLICATION

#LINEINTHECHALK

A planning application has been submitted for a temporary gas wellsite north of Butt Lane, Foxholes.

Our small North Yorkshire parish, the villages of Foxholes and Butterwick, has voted overwhelmingly to oppose Egdon Resources' gas drilling plans.

Why?

Because the proposal is to drill straight through a principal chalk aquifer, a vital source of clean drinking water for 900,000 people across the region, all in the search for gas.

We believe this puts our health, landscape, and future at risk.

Here are just some of the reasons we've said NO:

1. Protecting our water & food security
2. The precautionary principle — don't risk what you can't replace
3. Threats to the rare chalk stream, the Gypsy Race
4. Public health concerns (toxic gases, dust, noise)
5. Noise and light pollution disrupting rural life
6. Traffic & safety risks from heavy lorries
7. Damage to farmland, soils, and biodiversity
8. Risks to our countryside and tourism economy
9. Seismic uncertainties
10. Conflicts with planning policy & climate obligations

Why we need YOU.

Foxholes & Butterwick is a small parish with a tiny voice. But the risks from this project aren't tiny, they're regional and there are national implications too. We need your help to amplify our voice.

Spread the word, and stand with us to Draw a Line in the Chalk. #lineinthechalk Search for us on Facebook. Together, we can stop this proposal.

Here's how YOU can help:

Submit an objection: planning.control@northyorks.gov.uk

Quoting NY/2025/0113/FUL

Deadline: 31st October 2025.

- Write in your own words why this matters (water, noise, traffic, safety, environment etc.).
- Share posts with friends, family & local groups.
- Contact your councillor/MP. Let them know our community says NO.
- Contact Yorkshire Water to express your concerns.
- Volunteer your skills, specialist knowledge, research, design, spreading the word etc. every little helps.

Together we can make our voices heard. Don't wait, act today!

"THIS YEAR THE SUN SHONE" – THE TWING & OCTON SHOW

The Thwing and Octon Show has been hailed a great success, the show organiser and committee chairman of the Thwing and Octon Amenities Group, Chris Oxtoby told us that "This year the sun shone and it brought people to the show, we have had a couple of very difficult years . Last year we had very strong winds, which very nearly caused an abandonment of the site and the year before we were plagued with very wet weather all day. So it was great to see people out in the sun having a great afternoon".

Entertainment was provided by a group of Irish dancers and the local band "The L G's" who played two brilliant sets of music to relax and listen to.

The craft tent was buzzing with traders and punters, the various stall holders were kept busy through the afternoon.

Chris would like to pay a particular thanks to the class sponsors and the judges for their support and help on the day," events like this would not take place if it wasn't for these people"

"I think everyone went home happy at the end of the day, the judges commented on the high standard of the exhibits, and at times found it a difficult task"

"The number of entries were pretty much similar to last year, although the dry summer could have affected the slightly lower horticultural and farmers entries, but the marquee looked fantastic with all the entries"

It's time for a Macmillan Coffee Morning and you're invited

Let's do whatever it takes to support people living with cancer.
